► Equifax Coding Error IncidentArch MI Announces Position on and Data Collection Requirements for Loans Affected by the Equifax Coding Error Incident

Recent communications from Equifax, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac have notified us that due to an internal Equifax coding error, credit scores and credit data may have been affected in approximately 12% of credit reports issued by Equifax between March 17 and April 6, 2022.

Fannie Mae Lender Letter (LL) 2022-02 and Freddie Mac Bulletin 2022-14 address the impact of this Equifax coding error and announce their requirements for mortgages impacted by the coding error incident. The Agencies have determined that any errors to the underlying credit report data resulting from the coding error incident will not be considered material, and a repurchase request will not be issued based solely on this issue. The Agencies will not require credit unions to obtain an updated credit report and re-underwrite the loan, and the inaccurate credit score used at the time of underwriting will not render the loan ineligible for purchase. However, the Agencies do require the corrected score to be obtained from Equifax and data corrections made. Loan-level price adjustments and applicable credit fees will be based on the recalculated representative credit score. The process for obtaining and correcting the data with the Agencies varies based on whether the loan was underwritten through Desktop Underwriter[®] (DU[®]), Loan Product Advisor[®] (LPASM) or manually underwritten, as well as the purchase status of the loan.

This announcement addresses Arch Mortgage Insurance Company's (Arch MI's) position and our data collection requirements for those loans affected by the Equifax coding error incident

Arch MI will align with the Agencies' determination that any errors to the underlying credit report data resulting from the coding error incident will not be considered material and will not be subject to rescission based solely on this issue. Loans with insurance-in-force and loans in commitment status remain eligible. Arch MI will not require updated credit reports and will not require the loan to be re-underwritten.

For loans sold to Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac with DU or LPA, Arch MI expects to receive a data transmission from each Agency listing the impacted loans and will make the applicable data corrections at that time. If there is an immediate need for a data correction for a loan sold to Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac with DU or LPA, credit unions may submit the corrected Equifax score as outlined below. For all other loans, including loans sold to the Agencies without DU or LPA, or for loans held in portfolio or sold to other investors, Arch MI encourages credit unions to submit the corrected Equifax credit score as outlined below.
